BROWNSON'S SMILE.

A STORY OF THE COMMANDER THAT SAILORMEN LOVE TO TELL.

How the Detroit Broke Up What the Insurgent Admiral Called a "Blockade," An Incident That Pleases Men Who Have Seen Smiling Men Fight.

It was in January, 1894, that the civil war in Brazil was coming to a climax in the harbor at Rio. Admiral da Gama of the insurgents was in the harbor with several ships-of-war. The government held the city, but while the insurgent admiral held the water no shipping could go up to the front as long as he said it couldn't, and he said no. Various governments were affected by this embargo—"blockade" the admiral called it. Great Britain was concerned chiefly, but the United States was a good second, with Germany and other nations as well.

Europe looked to America to do something in the matter and was naturally diffident about interfering in family rows on this side of the water. At last Admiral Benham was sent down to take charge of the United States fleet in Rio harbor. The flagship was the San Francisco, and on Sunday, Jan. 28, Admiral Benham called on his captains to come aboard. Among them was Commander Brownson of the Detroit. It is said that after the conference this commander came back to his ship smiling. However that may be, he certainly smiled next morning. Just after 6 o'clock that evening—it was calm as could be, almost—the Yankee naval ships were seen to be in a huddle. The canvas awnings faded away, and in the night certain sounds were heard aboard them, at which various listeners put their hands cup shaped behind their ears to listen harder. On the morning of the 29th there was a change in the appearance of the Yankee fleet. It had taken off its coat, waistcoat and shirt, so to speak, and was just eyeing itself when day dawned to see how good its training had been.

The insurgent ships Aquidaban and Tamandare were up the bay above Vianna island with their cables short, ready to trip. The Trajano and Guanabara, as well as the fleet of armed tugs, were crowded with men from the garisons of Cobras and Villegaignon. The Liberdade flew the little blue ensign, for Admiral da Gama was aboard her, lying with the Trajano and Guanabara north of Enchados island, a few yards from the American bark Amy, one of the boats kept out by the blockade. The Parahyba was lying with its teeth, so to speak, at the throat of the Yankee barkentine Good News.

Commander Brownson on the Detroit got his ship under way, having hoisted anchor at 6 o'clock, and headed toward the city between Enchados and Cobras islands. Her crew was at her guns, and as eager a lot of men as one could see anywhere at that time. The anchor got fouled in the Detroit's hawse hole, and that was ample excuse for proceeding slowly, which was convenient, while a couple of insurgent tugs made a sputter at the northern littoral of the city, as they had been doing a long time. After a couple of men had been killed aboard the tugs they drew back, and the Detroit, with everything clear, rounded Enchados island and came along starboard side to starboard of the Trajano. The men looked through their sights and then up at Commander Brownson on the bridge. The story of what they saw is a tradition in the navy now and always will be so long as men like Brownson are in command. The commander was smiling.

A man on the Trajano raised a musket and fired a bullet over the heads of sailors pulling away in a boat with a line from the Amy to a ship at anchor that the Amy might be warped to the forbidden docks. Two heavy insurgent tugs came around with their rams pointed at the side of the Detroit. On the San Francisco the red flag of battle had been run up to the fore truck in stops. A quartermaster stood with his hand on the balyards eager to break it out, with his eyes fixed on the admiral, who was looking at the Detroit for the sign which would cause him to give the quartermaster the order so ardently desired.

When the insurgent shot was fired, Commander Brownson turned to the gunner at a one pounder, and with a scarcely perceptible increase of the smile ordered the man to shoot into the Trajano at the water line six feet abaft the stern. The order was misunderstood, and the shot went across the insurgents' bow. Thereupon Captain Brownson hailed:

"Trajano, aboy!" he shouted. "If you fire again, I will return the fire, and if you persist I will sink you."

The Trajano's crews were excited. If a nervous finger had pulled a trigger, the fight would have been on. But the shot did not sound. The sailors on the Amy's yawl waited to see what they were to do next.

"You go ahead," Commander Brownson shouted, "and I'll protect you!"

The sailors went. "Aim at the Guanabara!" ordered Commander Brownson. And the greasy black muzzles of the Detroit's broadside and the two pivot guns swung around, looking bigger and bigger every moment, till they stopped, leveled at the cruiser. One particularly nervous gun crew aboard the insurgent was conspicuous. Commander Brownson waved his hand, with a half smile, and this crew fell back.

Then the Yankee ships led the way to the docks, with other ships crowding in with them, and after awhile the rebellion collapsed. But the sailors who were on the Detroit at that time have told the story of Commander Brownson's smile to other sailors, and these to still others, till it has rippled to every water where the starry flag flies, and it is heard with marked interest by men on the ships of other nations—men who have seen smiling men fight.—New York Sun.

The Trans-Mississippi and International Congress is composed of delegates from every State and Territory West of the Mississippi river. The idea of this exposition originated in that Congress at its session at Omaha in 1895, and the project has become a National enterprise and the National Commission has been organized and is in active service, there being one commissioner for each of the several departments of the Government. Most of the Trans-Mississippi States are well along in the way of gathering exhibits from their respective States and many of them have made liberal appropriations, while others are preparing exhibits through private enterprise.

Vice-President H. B. Maxson of Reno, has made arrangements whereby he can get Nevada exhibits, shipped from any point in the State along the line of the C. P. R. R., to Omaha and return, and he requests all persons who wish the interests of the State advertised, to co-operate with the Exposition County Commissioner of his county, whose name is shown above, and prepare some product of his county and send it to the nearest point on the C. P. R. R. from which place it will be sent to Omaha and exhibited, and it will be the same point at the close of the exposition, free of expense to the exhibitor. Full information should accompany everything sent for exhibition. Before sending anything to the line of the railroad a full description should be given to the Exposition Commissioner of the county, who in turn will notify the Vice-President, who will notify him what action to take, otherwise there might be many duplications. Apply to your County Representative for further information, and don't let this opportunity of advertising the resources of Nevada be lost.

Resolved, "That the people of the Island of Cuba are and of right ought to be free and independent."

SPAIN BADLY CRIPPLED.

The American fleet has given the Spanish Asiatic squadron a death blow, and practically ended Spanish domination in the Philippine Islands. Now a similar blow to the Spanish fleet in the West Indies will end Spanish rule in Cuba and Porto Rico and virtually close the war. A victory by Sampson's fleet on this side of the Atlantic practically drives the Don from the ocean, frees Cuba and Porto Rico and may cause a revolution in Spain that will result in ending the present dynasty and the establishment of a republic on the ruins of the monarchy.

It is believed that a victory over the Spaniards in Cuban waters will cause European intervention. The moment the Star Spangled Banner waves over Morro Castle the most near-sighted grandees of Spain must see that it would be folly to continue the war. An appeal will then doubtless be made to the Great Powers of Europe to intervene and ask the United States in the name of humanity to cease hostilities and the Spaniards to relinquish all claims to Cuba and Porto Rico.

Spain is virtually bankrupt. Its Asiatic fleet is destroyed and it is only a question of time, and in all probability a very short time, when its Atlantic fleet will share the fate of the Asiatic squadron. It seems impossible for it to maintain such an unequal combat for any length of time and the longer it attempts to hold Cuba the more pitiable will be its condition at the end.

The fate of Greece seems to await Spain, and it is believed that it would not engage in a war with the United States were it not for the fear of a revolution at home.

THE EFFECT ALREADY APPARENT.

It is believed that the moral effect of Dewey's quick and great victory throughout all Europe will be almost incalculable. Spain's bragging has, to a certain extent, encouraged the prevailing opinion among European Powers that the United States was not prepared for a war and would not fight unless driven to it and that her navy would be an easy prey to any hostile nation. In fact, a number of the Powers had become impressed with the idea that most any result could be offered to an American and it would not be resented. The developments of the past few weeks or even days have been so startling the heads of foreign governments have opened their eyes to the extent of a stare and they stand in open mouthed yet speechless astonishment. They have suddenly discovered that the United States has a navy and the work of the gunners in it is terribly accurate and destructive, also that while Uncle Sam's regular army is small in numbers as compared to many of the European armies, yet a call for men brings out an army of determined fighters reaching into the hundreds of thousands. All Europe stands aghast and the slurs and jeers of a few weeks ago from certain Powers have suddenly changed to the most demonstrative protestations of friendship and admiration for the United States.

WESTERN TROOPS FOR MANILA.

The telegraph reports that President McKinley has practically decided to send 5,000 California and Western volunteers to Manila to aid Admiral Dewey in holding the Philippine Islands. Reports received before the cable between Manila and the main land was cut indicate that the Americans were in possession of the city, the Spanish Captain General having raised the white flag as a token of surrender.

If Western troops are sent to the Philippine Islands, as it is said they will be, it is quite probable that the Nevada National Guard will be afforded opportunity to furnish 500 men for service. The Governor, in behalf of the militia, tendered the President that number of fairly well drilled and partially equipped men for service in the war, and they may be accepted if any considerable number of volunteers are sent to the Philippines.

It is evident that Admiral Dewey's forces will have to be reinforced. Though the Spanish Asiatic squadron is virtually annihilated, land forces will be required to hold the islands, and they will doubtless be furnished by the volunteer army of the West.

The auction-flag red and the quarantine yellow of the Spanish banner have a peculiar fitness, considering that nation's bankrupt condition and its bad odor as a civilized government.

A RICH PRIZE CAPTURED.

Commodore Dewey to be Made an Admiral.

No Official Information Yet Received of the Bombardment of Manila.

Key West, May 3.—The Nashville has captured another very rich prize, the Spanish steamer Argonaut, having Spanish troops on board.

The U. S. gunboats brought in a small prize, the Antonio Padra. Only one blank shot was necessary to cause the craft to heave to and she was towed in here.

LONDON, May 3.—Tests from Hong Kong show the cable has been cut about 50 miles from Manila, a fortnight may elapse before it can be repaired.

The British Minister of Foreign Affairs has received information that Manila is now in the hands of Commodore Dewey.

The Queen Regent telegraphed the Pope that the defeat of the fleet at Manila is a great blow to the Spanish nation, but she is resolved to resist to the bitter end and her majesty also begs the Pontiff to bless the Spanish arms.

KINGSTON, (Jamaica), May 3.—The Spaniards have evacuated Bayamo, one of the important towns of Santiago de Cuba. It has been occupied by the insurgent forces.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—A most emphatic denial is given at the Navy Department to the published statement that the Department has declined to spare a couple of naval vessels to convey transports which carry troops from Florida to Cuban ports as a place for beginning the offensive campaign. None of the stories from Spanish sources as to the battle of Manila are so ridiculous in the eyes of naval men as that Dewey fired Manila with bombs of petroleum. There is no such thing in the navy.

In the House to-day the Chaplain gave thanks for the victory and prayed it might be the means of leading to an early end of the war.

The Cabinet meeting resulted in a decision to await a report from Commodore Dewey and then send him the number of troops he deems necessary to enforce our control in the Philippines.

The Administration practically favors occupying the Philippines with a strong military force as soon as possible.

Secretary Long announced that as soon as the Department received any official word from Dewey confirming the press accounts of his engagement at Manila resolutions would be sent to him congratulating him on his splendid victory. "Moreover," said the Secretary, "as soon as the necessary confirmation is at hand Commodore Dewey will be made an Admiral in recognition of his bravery by an Act of Congress."

The Navy Department report having no information of the bombardment of Manila.

New York, May 3.—It is reported from Hong Kong that Manila has fallen and the Stars and Stripes are now waving over the Philippines.

The officers and crews of Sampson's fleet also of Commodore Schley's flying squadron have cabled Admiral Dewey their congratulations. The news of Dewey's victory has stimulated the whole American Navy and when it became known on the vessels at Key West and off the coast of Havana it was with great difficulty that the officers could restrain the bursts of enthusiasm. Commodore Schley said that if the official news was as good as reported by Associated press he would allow the boys to yell themselves hoarse.

The last treaty between the United States and Spain was made in 1795. The next one will be made during the summer of 1898.

Two residents of Carson have offered 40 acres of land as a free donation if the Miners' Home can be located in that city.

B. F. Leste,

A Wellington Snub.

The Duke of Wellington had had in Lord Combermere one of the best aids the army ever produced, and he had often expressed his appreciation of his comrade's good qualities, but when his former lieutenant, who had taken to the habits of a gay man about town, called upon him at the Horse guards in later times of peace he treated the visit as follows: "What does that d—d old painted jackass want with me?" His military secretary, aghast, whispered, "He will hear you, sir." Then the old duke used the words so often quoted: "Do you think I care a twopenny tinker's d—n whether he hears me or not?" Poor Combermere, jauntily though he might carry himself, was not proof against this, and when the secretary entered the room the Duke said: "Leave old Combermere alone."

Postage Stamps.

Stamps were put on the market in August, 1847, but were so little used that the government had to pass a law enforcing prepayment of postage, which went into effect in 1855. Before this action was taken scarcely one letter in a dozen was found with a stamp affixed. Today the postoffices of the country sell 4,000,000,000 stamps (counting postal cards, stamped envelopes and stamps of all kinds), valued at $75,000,000, during a single year.

There seems some little possibility that the Nevada volunteers will be sent to the Philippines. They could ask for nothing better for the trip would be a magnificent one and as one of them expressed it, "the climate is not so d-d hot." MISS HELEN KELLEHER.

Her Illustrated Lecture on California Last Evening.

The Opera House was crowded last evening to listen to Miss Kelleher's description of a trip through the golden state, her lecture being illustrated with over two hundred realistic scenes of mountain and coast scenery as well as views taken in many of the prominent cities and towns showing streets, public buildings and homes, orange and lemon groves and the flora of California. The views were thrown on a large screen by a powerful electro-steriophonic and they were perfect in every detail.

Miss Kelleher's first words after being introduced by President Stubbs of the State University were: "California! There is a magic charm in the name itself. All eyes seem turned toward her. This land of sunshine and flowers this land of the precious gold seems to beckon and allure the sons of men, holding out to them the rainbow of promise." She was in excellent voice and her clear enunciation, impressive manner and accurate description held the close and wonderfully quiet attention of the audience for fully two hours, every eye feasting on the beauties of the pictures while every ear was primed to catch her every word. Those who had lived or visited in the Golden State were carried back to familiar scenes and reminiscences of their childhood days when they trudged the wooded paths, climbed the rough mountain sides in search of rare wild flowers or gathered moss and shells on the sea shore. Those who had never visited the State or whose knowledge of it was limited to San Francisco and immediate neighboring towns, felt that if the opportunity ever offered they would certainly see more. She carried her audience with her as if by magic as each point was visited and eloquently described. A pleasant feature of the evening was the singing of patriotic songs by the University Glee Club and the short address by Arch Deacon Webber of "America" and its position in the present crisis received the enthusiastic and patriotic approval of the audience as was demonstrated at the close of the entertainment by all joining heartily in singing the "Star Spangled Banner."

Reno Mercantile Company.

The Reno Mercantile Company make an announcement in the advertising columns of today's JOURNAL. The firm is composed of progressive young men, Nevada boys in the strictest sense of the term, with Nevada's interests and the well being of Reno at heart. They fully realize that to bring success to the community in which our lives and does business, fair dealing must be the very first consideration, paid to patrons. This is the policy of Messrs. Barber, Martin and Eaton who represent the firm and give their personal attention to the business. Staple and fancy groceries are a specialty and they also deal in a general line of crockery, glass and tinware, lime, cement and other building material. They are agents for the Buckeye saws, also extras for the same as well as other machine extras. Any order in their line from a distance will be promptly filled.

A Clever Trick.

It certainly looks like it, but there is really no trick about it. Anybody can take it who has lame back and weak kidneys, malaria or nervous troubles. We mean he can cure himself right away by taking Electric Bitters. This medicine tones up the whole system, acts as a stimulant to liver and kidneys, is a blood purifier and nerve tonic. It cures constipation, head ache, fainting spells, sleeplessness and melancholy. It is purely vegetable, a mild laxative, and restores the system to its natural vigor. Try Electric Bitters and be convinced that they are a miracle worker. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50c a bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

The Viavi Work.

In no way can we do more good than in restoring the sick to health. This Viavi will do, if intelligently used. Have you stomach trouble? Use our Tabloids.

Have you piles? Use our Sano. Have you catarrh? Use our Catarrh Remedy. Are you weak and all run down? Use Viavi.

Come and see me and I will fully explain the use of all our remedies. Mrs. B. E. HUNTER.

A TALISMAN.

What uses had he for all these— This ring locked, rusty bunch of keys? Ah, this one closed his vault of wine, And this one opened up the mine. From whence he took the store of thought That here are in his writings wrought. But that? Why, here he held his life! This was his latchkey, and his wife Has thanked dear God to hear it turn. Its place is 'mong the ashes in his urn. —William Lightfoot Visscher in Woman's Home Companion

AT THE AQUARIUM.

A Feeding Time Incident of Life in the Balanced Tanks.

When the decorator crab gets too big for its shell, it does what many other shellfish do—it sheds it, emerging with its new shell already formed, but at that stage of its growth pliable and not much thicker than paper. In its soft shell state it is comparatively defenseless, and it keeps out of the way of other shellfish if it can, but its new shell soon hardens, and then it goes about in its accustomed manner.

The decorator increases greatly, perhaps a third in size, almost immediately after leaving its old shell, which it scarcely seems possible it could ever have inhabited, but it gets out of the old shell nevertheless without damaging it and leaving it often disposed in a most lifelike form.

The decorators at the aquarium are fed separately, so that each will be sure to get its portion. The food is put down to them on the tip of a little stick, which is shaken gently over them, and the food, thus detached, falls within the crabs' grasp. There is no current in the balanced tanks in which the smaller decorators are, and anything dropped in the water drops straight down. The other day there were found in one of these tanks, clinging to the alga, two decorators, which were supplied, as usual, by placing their food in the water where they would be sure to get it. Being somewhat pressed for time that day, however, the man who fed them did not wait to see the crabs actually eat. He placed their food within reach and trusted them to do the rest.

But glancing in at this tank on his return from feeding the small fishes and things in the other balanced tanks he saw the two decorators that he had found on the alga still there and in precisely the same attitudes as before, and then he realized that they were not live crabs, but sheddings. He had been feeding empty shells. On taking them out of the tank he found inside of one of them the fragment of food which he had dropped for it, which had fallen into it through the opening between the upper and the lower part of the shell which the crab had made in getting out.

It may be that the two decorators formerly residing in these shells, but now secure in some distant part of the tank with new shells hardening on their backs, smiled as they thought of the feeding of their empty shells. It is certain that the man who fed them smiled as he arranged them for preservation in the aquarium's collection. —NEW YORK SUN.

D'Annunzio's Art.

The Italian correspondent of Literature, in discussing Signor d'Annunzio, alludes to the fact—if it is a fact—that in spite of "his putridity and morbid sensuality" he "compels even those most averse from his standard of taste to acknowledge his power as an artist." Well, suppose he does compel this acknowledgment. What of it? The writer in Literature goes on to ask if when artists "seem by preference to linger near putrefactions and morbidities is there not cause to conclude that 'there's something rotten'?" But apparently he is afraid to answer the question flatly and to add that rottenness in art should be debar it from further discussion.

We are well aware that this kind of proposition always elicits a shrill yelp of protest in certain quarters. To deny the right of "art" to do anything it pleases is, we are told, to write oneself down not only a Philistine, but a gibbering idiot. Nevertheless, the great shining fact remains that a man like d'Annunzio never got anything like a permanent foothold upon Parnassus, and all this talk about his "art" might just as well cease. It will never make him a classic. Those talkers who think it will, and hence go on talking, must be curious individuals. Like Charles Lamb, we would like to see their bumps. But we are not sure that even this trivial attention would not be more than they are worth. —New York Tribune.
